SUBJECT: Federal Support for Research and Education on Foreign Affairs

Important national interests and federal responsibilities are affected by the increasingly critical situation faced by academic centers which conduct programs of education and research on foreign areas and international affairs. There is thus the need for comprehensive Executive Branch attention to the question of immediate and longer-range federal support for these educational centers and for research directed at mid-term foreign policy problems.

The President therefore has directed the Chairman of the Under Secretaries Committee to establish a special interagency group to analyze the situation, encourage such immediate action as appropriately can be taken by individual departments and agencies, develop options concerning modalities and magnitudes of federal funding, and formulate recommendations. An initial report should be submitted by January 31, 1976.

Each addressee is asked to designate a representative to the special group and to inform the Chairman of the USC of that designation by November 1, 1975.

Henry A. Kissinger
